Online courses and support to help you get back into work

Would you like to boost your skills to help you get back into work? Skills Support for Employment will provide you with tailored support that will enable you to find employment and succeed in the workplace.

Improve your skills with fully funded courses

Whether you've been made redundant or are considering a change of career in light of COVID-19, Skills Support for Employment can offer you a range of online courses to help you upskill and enhance your employment prospects. Best of all, the courses are fully-funded, meaning there's no cost to you.

We understand that the current situation is tough for job-seekers, however it's the ideal opportunity to gain the skills you need to take your next step and get back into work. There has never been a better time to branch out and develop your skillset ready for your return to work. You can even start learning whenever suits you.
